African Diaspora Studies Minor

The African Diaspora Studies (ADS) minor allows students to deepen their exploration, begun in the introductory ADW 111-112 sequence, about the foundational contributions of Africans and African descendants to the creation and development of the modern and post-modern worlds. It provides students with an intellectual foundation that enables them to reflect upon and articulate their sense of identity in the context of the global presence of people and culture of African origin. Special emphasis is placed on the diversity as well as intersections and connections among various communities of African descent globally. The course sequence, which requires both scholarly and experiential engagement, seeks to prepare students to become members of a world community committed to positive social change.

Requirements for the African Diaspora Studies (ADS) Minor

Six to seven (6-7) courses totaling twenty-four (24) hours are the minimum requirement for the ADS minor. Two core courses ADS 220 and ADS 242 are required. Students must then select four additional elective courses, two from the social sciences and two from the humanities or fine arts to complete the minimum 24 hours. The electives from the social sciences and from the humanities / fine arts must be from two different traditions or geographic regions.

Note: A student may not double count an elective for this minor with any other college requirement.

Core Courses
Two courses for six-eight (6-8) credit hours
- ADS 220 Discourses of the African Diaspora (4)
- ADS 242 Directed Study (2-4)

♦ ADS 220 Discourses of the African Diaspora (4) This course provides an in-depth exploration of ideas, concepts, and theories relevant to the study of the African diaspora. Through the analysis of works by key scholars, theorists, and artists, it enables students to understand the histories, intersections and connections among African diaspora communities worldwide and, as a result, articulate their own sense of identity in relation to the global presence of peoples and cultures of African origin. Course prerequisites: ADW 111 and 112.

Elective Courses within the ADS Program

◆ ADS 300 Activism in Afro-Latin America (4) This course explores varied manifestations of social, political, and cultural activism observable among African descendants in Latin America. “activism” is defined broadly to include both historical and contemporary instances of collective resistance, revolt, and rebellion as well as sustained collective organizing, action, and mobilization around artistic, cultural, social, intellectual, political, and religious agendas aimed at bringing about black liberation, social justice, and cultural, ethnic, and racial awareness and pride. Prerequisites: ADW 111/112.

◆ ADS 301 Black Women in Latin America (4) This course takes an interdisciplinary, African Diaspora approach that draws from History, Women’s Studies, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Science, Cultural Studies, Media Studies, and Sexuality Studies. We will examine how legacies of slavery, narratives of mestizaje (racial mixing), ideas of womanhood, and class stratification inform the long history of women’s exclusion and oppression in the region, their day-to-day experiences of racism and sexism, and their activism and political organizing. Prerequisites: ADW 111/112.

◆ ADS 320 Peoples and Cultures of the Global African Diaspora (4) This course explores “diaspora” as concept and analytical tool as well as “diaspora” as lived experience. The former entails the study of different theoretical approaches taken by scholars of various disciplines and the latter a close examination of specific and diverse African descendant populations at different historical moments and in different geographical locations outside of Africa. Locations covered include India, Iran, Israel, Australia, the UK, the Netherlands, Germany, Russia, etc. Prerequisites: ADW 111/112.

◆ ADS 350 Reading Selves and Societies through Autobiography and Biography (4) This course examines autobiography, memoir, autoethnography, biography, life history, and oral history as sites for the interrogation of race, ethnicity, culture, class, gender, sexuality, and nation as concepts and lived experiences. Students will explore the ways individuals represent these aspects of their identity and how these aspects are shaped by larger historical, cultural, and socio-political forces. Also explored are the possibilities and limitations of these genres as sources and methods for humanistic and social scientific inquiry. Prerequisites: ADW 111/112.

◆ ADS 405 Blackness and Nation in Latin America & the Caribbean (4) This course explores the realities of primarily contemporary populations of African descent in different national contexts throughout Latin America and the Caribbean. Students will gain familiarity with elements of the history, national socio-political context, and culture of the particular populations covered. Additionally, students will come to better understand race, ethnicity, culture, nation, diaspora, and blackness as concepts and as salient experiences contributing to the formation of group identities. Prereqs.: ADW 111/112.
